

Dear fellow PhD candidates and PostDocs,

UiODoc is back from its summer break. We hope that all of you could spend some time on recreation and are motivated and full of creative energy.

Time flies; the Autumn semester has already started and the campus buzzes with new students. It's time for picking berries and chanterelles and UiODoc presents you with our very own selection of goodies. We will pick up the PhD and PostDoc Breakfast Club (PPBC) once again on August 29th starting with "Pitch yourself" - or how to successfully leave the ivory tower of academia.

We at UiODoc are also currently working towards a new series of seminars (planned for October/November) which shall bring PhD candidates and PostDocs together with different future employers.

Stay tuned!

PhD and PostDoc breakfast club (PPBC)

In cooperation with UiO library and MatNat faculty, we are organizing the popular PhD and PostDoc Breakfast Club. This series of talks will continue on August 29th (08.30 h at HumSam biblioteket) with "Pitch yourself".

Crossing the chasm from academic to professional life can seem to be a daunting challenge. This presentation will give the audience some tricks to help them present themselves to prospective employers and some tips to help them find a good match.

Our speaker:

Alan Louis Belardinelli works at UiO's Office for Project and Process Support. He is from the US and has worked in a diverse set of fields, disciplines, and countries, and who has experience from both sides of the hiring/job fair environment. When he is not at UiO, he can be found working on his own projects and living the proverbial dream at his small farm in Hedmark, with his partner and their cat.

Free breakfast upon registration.
